Extensive Hail Damage

DISASTROUS HAIL STORM
STRIKES NORTHERN DISTRICTS

Thousands of acres of the finest crops in the west, crops that had withstood long days of continued dry weather and held promise of 40 and 50 bushel yields, were laid flat Friday afternoon in one of the most destructive hail storms the district has ever known. Originating apparently in the High River area the storm swept east along the correction line, laying waste to much fine farm land enroute. In the neighborhood of the Corner store, the storm seemed to fork, going east to the Buffalo Hills, Milo and Queenstown districts, and south and west to the Floyd Atkinson farm where a splendid stand of what was damaged about 75%, and on southwards with lesser damage. Loss to crops varied from 10% to 100% in the area struck. Hills in the Buffalo Hills country were still white several hours after the storm had spent itself. On the W. S. Hill ranch the land looked practically as if it had been summer-fallowed. Many farmers like Billy Hill, Bill McMullen, Bill Burgess and Archie Oldfield won't harvest a bushel of crop. Shingles were ripped from roofs, young chickens killed, and, of course, gardens cleaned out in the path of the storm. Some losses were partially covered by insurance, but the loss is enormous, not to mention the discouragement of seeing crops nearing maturity wiped out in ten minutes. The Vulcan district and surrounding points have suffered particularly hard from hail this season, many sections being hit two and three times. Some crops have recovered to some extent from earlier storms, but owing to the lateness of Friday's hail there is no hope of salvaging anything but some feed. Crops from High River right through to Milo, a strip from four to seven miles wide, were almost completely destroyed.

BERRYWATER

The Berrywater annual church picnic was held at the Arrowwood bridge, Sunday, August 5th, and was successfully attended. Everybody enjoyed an afternoon of playing games, swimming and mainly eating. It is hoped that no one suffered from over-indulgence, but an iron will was needed to resist the good "eats". It was a pleasure to have Miss Irene Pridham, of Calgary; Miss Marion and Miss Helen Dunham; Mrs. Bell and family; Mr. and Mrs. Amey and John Carr, of Okotoks, at the picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Oldfield spent the week-end at Banff. They were accompanied home by the latter's sister, Mrs. Margaret Campbell, of Toronto, Ont., who has been holidaying at the west coast. Mrs. Campbell will spend a few days in the district before proceeding to her home in the east.

Friends of Master Russel Smith will be pleased to learn he has successfully undergone an appendectomy and is expected home the first of the week.

ENSIGN LADIES' AID

The Ensign Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Turley on Thursday, August 2nd, with nine members and five visitors being present. There being no old or new business, the meeting was short and a social afternoon was enjoyed after which the hostess served a dainty lunch. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Collison on Thursday, Sept. 6.

Swath Early

C. N. Denik, of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Swift Current, states that wheat can be swathed several days earlier than has been considered safe. The custom in the past has been to wait till moisture is down to 20% but it is Mr. Denik's statement that 36% is not too much. Ripe, dry grain contains about 15% moisture.

It is Mr. Denik's advice that the stubble should be left 6 inches high, and not more than eight inches in order to provide strength to hold the grain above the ground. The grain binds together better while cut on the green side, forming a weather resisting swath which picks up cleanly after almost any kind of weather.

In sawfly areas farmers are turning to swathing instead of waiting for straight combining, in order to avoid the losses from sawfly hordes.

In many areas of Southern Alberta, fields are heavily infested with sawfly. Because of the cool, wet season, which affected both the sawfly development and crop growth, infestations may be patchy.

To determine if sawflies are present, it is easy to find them in wheat plants in the field. If a series of wheat stems are split open, sawfly grubs will be found in infested stems. The presence of a sawfly grub will indicate the presence of grubs. By counting the number of infested stems the percentage of infestation can be determined.

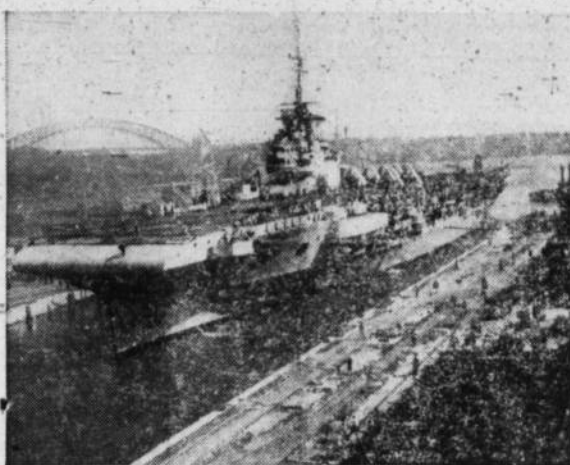

If crops are bound or swathed in the late dough stage, sawfly losses will be cut to a minimum. It must be remembered that swathing will not cut down sawfly numbers. It is only a method of salvaging crop, which if left for straight combining would be lost. Swathing of binding sawfly infested grain will repay you by gathering all the grain in your fields.

FREAK FIRE

A freak fire occurred on the Alvin Fulton farmstead last Saturday when an old woodpile suddenly sent up a big puff of smoke and seemed to all burst into flame at the same time. Mrs. Fulton, and a neighbor who was ploughing just across the road, happened to be looking towards the woodpile when it occurred. Flames quick set a shed and bunk house afire. Mr. Fulton and two boys were handy and they managed to move the bunk house out of danger. By that time several neighbors had gathered and succeeded in putting out the fire on the buildings and kept them soaked until the flames had died down.

The quick arrival of neighbors and their help prevented the loss of several valuable outbuildings. They are at a loss to explain how the wood pile which comprised loosely piled fence posts and scrap lumber, could catch fire at all, let alone all burst into flame at once.

Why Not Make Hogs Tax Free?

If Mr. Hilsley Really Wants More Hog Production, He Could Make Returns Tax Free Says One Farmer

The decline in hog production is causing some concern, with no clear reason as to cause of decline, or possibly a multiplicity of reasons amongst which is uncertainty of future markets.

One man offers the suggestion that if they really want hogs why not make hogs income tax free. He says that the majority of western farmers have been producing hogs as a side line. It is not their main business, but they have gone into the business heavily during war years, thereby greatly increasing their own losses. A good many farmers, in checking up, find that the returns on this sideline just about equal the income tax which they have to pay. So they are inclined to review the past with some regret, recalling all the labor and time involved in keeping the hogs clean and fattening them for market. They say "My hogs and Mr. Hilsley just about cancel each other out. No hogs, no Mr. Hilsley. I'll be rid of two big headaches at one stroke. Life will be simpler if I just sell my grain, and maybe pasture a few cattle."

In other words, many farmers entered into hog production at a time when there was great labor shortage. To an extent they went into it because of the tremendous needs of Britain, as well as domestic needs. But when the big share of revenue from their labor has to be paid over in income tax, leaving them with little but sore backs, they say "What's the use?" This is particularly true when the peck pressure of patriotic motive is easing off, and when there's no grave doubt as to the permanency of the British market.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

"Believe it or not" of the "ho-ho-ho" world, vouches for a man who represents all the sterling virtues of truth-telling. He is a man who happened at the time of the world over for strict adherence to truth. There were two men playing horse-hoos. The first got a ringer, and then he got a le ner. The second player stepped in, and the w. shooting out the ringer and the leaner, and winning the contest. One in a thousand years and it happened at Glenview.

It would give Claude Mills, Charlie Warhol and the other old veterans of the "pitching" something to discuss into the night.

THREE CANADIAN TRENDS

THE North Battleford News dwells upon three main trends facing Canada. The highways along which the country must proceed are a new Internationalism, a new Nationalism and a new Inter-provincial atmosphere. This is necessary for greater nationhood.

The process of internationalism is going forward, because this is the way to a greater and better world. By contributing to collective security Canada is contributing, with fifty other nations, to freedom across the seven seas.

To have an international world of law and order it is imperative to make enduring the national structure. Where there is a world without true nationalism there can be no international existence worth talking about. Their very mutuality makes for basic construction. Anything else reaps the whirlwind. Canada has been backward in developing a satisfying Canadianism. Her people have been talking about the potential greatness of their country for decades, yet have not had the necessary dynamic fire to demand a distinct flag of their own. We should have had one seventy-five years ago, and had it not been for the noisy chatter of a few imperialists we would have had it.

Our third process of travel is to break new ground between the provinces, getting the necessary co-operation of all the nine provinces to rear the fabric of nationhood on Canadian soil.

The only way it can be got is by all Canadians taking on new vision and staying with it till necessary things are done and done as perfectly as possible. We have been but biting at the principle of provincial co-operation. Like some of our convention busiers, a few of our so-called statesmen have been footballing with inter-provincial action. This has to be stopped if Canada is to grow and go ahead. Perhaps, the coming conference between the Dominion and the provinces will fare better than preceding ones. Perhaps! Let us hope so anyway! But can you wonder at inter-provincial chaos, when we neither have a National Flag, a National Anthem agreeable to all, nor the power to alter our own constitution to any specific degree? Can you?

For Free Trade

(Searle Grain Co.)

Some say, if we freely admitted foreign goods, consider the number of Canadian people who would be put out of work? This fear, too, we find is grossly exaggerated. The 1941 census of Canada tells us that 4,196,000 persons are gainfully employed in Canada in the following proportions: Agriculture 25.8%, manufacturing 16.8%, and in all other occupations including fishing, trapping, logging, mining, construction, transportation and trade, commerce and finance 57.4%. It will be observed from this that only 16.8% of the people are employed in all the Canadian manufacturing industries put together (and we must remember that nothing like all of these manufacturing industries have tariff protection). A rather rough estimate we calculate would be that perhaps not more than 12% of our workers would be affected if tariff protection were removed, and that most certainly 88%, including all our prairie farmers, and all those in Canada who depend directly and indirectly upon farmers and upon other producers, would be greatly benefitted. It is right, then, we ask that 88% of the people should suffer severely in order to maintain 12% of the people in certain industries for which this country is really not suited?

Free Trade Would Create More Jobs in Canada

But there is something else to consider. Let us suppose that foreign country "A" sells to us 50 million dollars worth of cheaper goods which, as we have shown, benefit all our people. As payment for these goods these foreign people receive 50 million Canadian paper dollars. We suggest there is nothing whatever these 50 million Canadian dollars can be used for excepting ultimately to buy 50 million dollars worth of Canadian products and goods. These purchases, of course, mean the production of additional quantities of Canadian products and goods which in turn mean increased Canadian employment. So that under a system of Free Trade or no tariffs, while for the time being 12%—it might even be less—of those employed in highly protected industries would have to readjust themselves, yet it would not be long before their efforts would be in demand to make a thousand and one other things which would be required by foreign people who had sold us their own goods.

Surely then the almost unbounded resources which Canada possesses, said to be higher per capita than the resources available to the people of any other country in the world, with our exceedingly cheap hydro-electric power, of which we have an abundance, and with the inventiveness and ingenuity which Canadian industry has displayed in this war, surely, we repeat all these resources and talents and inventiveness can be applied to the manufacture of goods processed from our own resources, which are not possessed to the same extent by foreigners and with which foreign people, therefore Canadian manufacturers should easily be able to compete.

Extra Burden On Bank Staffs

Government Service Carried on Though Banks Face Loss of Experienced Helpers

Local banks as well as branches all over Canada have during the course of the war had their work greatly increased at a time when many experienced staff members have enlisted in the armed forces and when new staff has had to be broken in. The enlistment of these men for members of the armed forces and for payment of the armed forces' allowances, and for workers in government plants, and other war industries, has, of course, reached great proportions. The number of cheques going through banks has been multiplied by millions.

War-time services also taken on by the banks include: the servicing of Victory Loans; the selling, delivering and safe-keeping of bonds and cashing of coupons; also the selling and safe-keeping of War out and handling of forms required under Foreign Exchange Control; ration coupon banking; and many others.

Now comes Family Allowances which will impose an additional task on the banks. It is reported the first of these cheques will be distributed the latter part of this month, and the banks are looking forward to a busy time cashing them, entering on the task willingly although all government cheques are cashed by the banks at par and without charge anywhere in Canada.—Wolfville Acadian.

Shipments of Wheat a Record

Heavy Demands From Europe Set a New High For 1944-45 Crop Year, With Exports Continuing Record proportions were reached in shipments of Canadian wheat during the crop year which ended July 31st, and the trend is expected to continue during the new crop year because of heavy demands from Europe.

Approximately 485,000,000 bushels of wheat were moved from the lakehead during the last 12 months a Dominion bureau of statistics official said and these shipments were the heaviest since 1928 when 386,000,000 bushels, an amount higher than for most war years although not spectacular when compared with pre-war days.

Exports during the coming crop year are expected to be as high. A bumper wheat crop is in prospect in the United States, and exports to that market are likely to drop.

However, the wheat shortage in Europe is serious and has been aggravated by crop failures in Spain and Portugal, which escaped the dislocation of war. North Africa often used as a source of wheat supplies in Europe, has a poor crop in prospect.

The heavy shipments during the last year have left Canadian carry-over wheat stocks at between 275,000,000 and 285,000,000 bushels, the lowest on record since 1939. A year ago the carryover stocks totalled 356,000,000.

By Aug. 1, 1946, the carryover stocks are expected to be even lower because Canadian wheat acreage has been cut down and crop prospects in some sections of Western Canada are none optimistic.

Manitoba cut its wheat acreage by 15 per cent and this was not offset by small increases in the acreage in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Although no official estimate has been made of what this year's crop may yield, unofficial sources claim that the crop will not total more than 300,000 bushels—the amount Canada exported last year.

Drought has effected the crop in the western half of Saskatchewan and in large areas of Alberta. The drought in the western areas was in contrast to wet conditions in central Canada—Ontario and Quebec—where fairly large quantities of feed grains are grown.

Explosives strewn in the oceans of the world by fighting powers, are expected to be a menace for the next ten years. These mines change in location in time.

Mr. Colquette's News of Prairies

Interview With Popular Broadcaster: Reveals Where News Comes From and How He Feels About It

So many people are unfailing listeners of R. D. Colquette's "Neighborhood News of the Prairies" program that they will be interested to learn how Mr. Colquette gets his news, and something of the man himself. Recently Jean Hinds of Winnipeg interviewed him in a radio broadcast, and his answers tell quite a story. He reads about 75 weeklies every week to cull material for his Sunday broadcast. His selection is based on items of more than local interest. "His clippings must come through these papers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. It is on news for the public to send him odd items direct. He cannot use them, and he advises that people send these bits of news to their local paper which he reads carefully.

He takes animal stories, freak accidents, freak weather, neighborly acts, and mention of the more elderly people. Only wedding anniversaries of those who have been married 60 years or more, and only those whose birthdays are October 10 get mention.

Some of the Neighborhood News of the Prairies is assembled at Toronto alone with similar news from other parts of Canada and is broadcast in English, so that boys and girls everywhere get little flashes from their own home town.

Mr. Colquette is a westerner who moved to Saskatchewan when he was a homesteader in Saskatchewan. Then he attended Manitoba Agricultural College and wound up with graduation from Ontario Agricultural College.

In the interview Miss Hinds asked him about some of the best stories that he has gleaned for his "Neighborhood News" broadcast, and as an example he replied:

"Well, there was a story in the High River Times, about the early floods in High River, Alberta. The river was very high and the swollen water had washed out one of the telephone poles carrying the trunk line. It washed it out at the bottom so that the pole, instead of supporting the line, was hanging on it, and the bottom end of it was bouncing up and down in the racing torrent. A trouble shooter from the telephone company was trying to do something about it, but he couldn't reach the pole. Couldn't get anywhere near it. So he called on a nearby farmer who knew how to handle a rifle. The farmer came down and with thirteen rifle shots he cut the pole off, just below the arm that supported the wires. That was shootin'!"

Moreover he backs up the Times in the assertion that this was a true story. It was too. It happened in a flood not so long ago, the scene of the shooting being the vicinity of the C.P.R. bridge.

Can Conquer Couch Grass

Couch grass, once one of the most troublesome weeds in Alberta, has met its master in the form of the one-way disc. By means of this implement the infested land can be given a shallow cultivation which will eliminate the top growth and starve out the weeds. This method is economical and effective. In addition, the roots of the plant are left in the ground to

A Half Miracle

It is conversationally popular to speak of Joseph Stalin as a realist. We do not use the word in commendation, and we speak as though realism began and ended with him. Yet it was Britain and the United States, not Russia, that engineered the inclusion of Argentina, the most perfidious among the non too admirable collection of ostensible neutrals, as an active partner in our brotherhood of nations. Were no realistic interests involved in that particular course?

It might be well to remind ourselves—and this without any judgment on the rights or wrongs of the case—that the Russians have what must appear to them as ample reason for caution in their dealings. Joseph Stalin may remember, for instance, that these allies who expect so much of Russian co-operation now are the same British, American and French who in 1918 sent troops to Archangel and Siberia to fight the Revolution.

Stalin is not likely to have forgotten that the allies who now look askance at Russia's actions in the Baltic are the same people who in 1918 took from Russia, not only the newer Baltic states but much of Poland and Finland as well. A cordon sanitaire, they called it, to stop the spread of Communism. Now Russia prepares her own cordon against the threat of Germany. The excuse for one would seem as good as for the other.

Perhaps Stalin remembers that it was not until 1934 that Russia reluctantly admitted to the League of Nations, only to be summarily ejected for an attack on Finland that, in Russian eyes at least, was inevitable if she were to survive. He may have thought with understandable cynicism that when Germany, Japan and Italy perpetrated more flagrant aggressions, no one demanded their election. They were permitted to retire from the League.

Perhaps he remembers that it was Foreign Commissar Litvinov who made the first plea for world disarmament, a plea that fell on deaf ears; that it was the same commissar who in September, 1938, pleaded, in the face of the Munich agreement for a world alliance against Hitler. "You are paying a bonus for saber rattling," Litvinov said. "You are dodging a problem that war today in return for a certain large-scale war tomorrow."

Whether Russia is right or wrong is not the issue. The issue is: Can we deal in understanding instead of prejudice? If we can—if we can still the noisy clacking of irresponsible tongues—we may at last have a half miracle, we hope but we may achieve a half miracle; and on half-miracles the world moves forward.—Liberty.

decompose and add fertility to the soil. Cultivation should commence about the middle of June advises H. J. Mather, provincial supervisor of weed control. The discs of the tiller must be sharp and the machine properly adjusted. If a heavy growth of grass is present the field should be mowed before cultivation. Six or seven operations with the one-way disc at intervals of two weeks will kill couch grass. In the year following the field should be seeded to barley at 2 to 2½ bushels per acre in order to crowd out weakened couch grass plants which might remain.—Alberta Wheat Pool Budget.

Lake McGregor Monster Still in headlines. Pentiction Embittered. Meanwhile Milo Turns Calmly to Matters of Gophers, Skunks, Etc.

This week the Milo correspondent and the good citizens of Milo have been taken to task by the Pentiction paper over our Ogo-pogo. The article, reproduced from the Pentiction paper, just goes to show that there is more than one monster in the famous land of the Okanagan. There is a green-eyed monster of jealousy, but let the article speak for itself:

Ogo-pogo's Cross

Okanagan people are inordinately proud of their real Ogo-pogo, resent the intrusion of obviously fake reports from elsewhere. Last week a number of fresh converts to the band of Ogo-pogo's faithful believers was enrolled hereabouts, and as was not expected, up pops the fake rivalry.

What a place in which to locate a new sea serpent—an irrigation reservoir. Nevertheless the citizens of Milo, Alberta, insist that such a creature exists in Lake McGregor, the main reservoir for the Lethbridge irrigation system. Those who claim to have seen it, obviously madmen, describe it as being 12 to 14 feet long (Ogo-pogo may be 90 feet according to some Pentictionites). The Alberta entrant is said to swim with its head several feet out of the water, is a well-trained serpent, and according to the Edmonton Journal, there are no reports of its devouring any of the local citizenry.

The Journal editorializes: "We hope that the existence of this peculiar animal will soon be confirmed. A genuine sea serpent is an asset to any community. Consider the benefits which the Loch Ness monster brought to a hitherto obscure part of Scotland or the fame which the mysterious Ogo-pogo conferred on Okanagan Lake. Perhaps this can be arranged before next summer."

Meanwhile we can only admire the philosophic detachment of the High River Times' correspondent in Milo. Says he: "If this does not advertise our lake, which is the second largest artificial lake in the world, it should at least advertise our beer, which must be second to none."

Our Ogo-pogo has had to bear much in comment and controversy, but the coupling of his name with an artificial serpent in an artificial lake, with overtones of beer advertising, strikes a new and dastardly low, to which Okanagan reaction has been promptly and properly intense.

"Alright, alright, Pentictionites, let's quarrel not, I pray. Let's get together on this thing, perhaps we'll make some hay. If you'll produce your little pet, we will do the same and in Alberta's Bad Lands, we'll introduce new games. Where dinosaurs used to dwell we'll turn the creatures free, and then if nature takes its course, we'll see what we shall see. Perhaps a grateful government will lend us to the skies. We'll solve the many problems that meat-shortages arise. We'll sell Ogo-pogo products in barrels, jars and tins, flesh from off their noble rumps and fish from off their fans.

Personals

Last week we spent a few days in Calgary and went down to St. George's Island and there we saw on display the four black gophers donated by David Crabb of Milo to the Calgary zoo. All of them lived and they are fat, black, sleek fellows and seem to have taken quite well to a life in captivity. They create a lot of interest and unless one were advised as to what they were it would be difficult to associate them with the common gopher.

This week the district welcomes back from nearly four years overseas, Lt. Ross Bertrand. He was met on his arrival in Calgary by his wife and parents and we are all looking forward to renewing his acquaintance.

Our congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hellevang upon the birth at the Bassano hospital of a daughter.

C. J. Northcott, who lives south of town had quite an experience the other day. He saw a mother skunk and eight little ones coming up the path and hastily grabbed a shotgun. He loaded both barrels, shut both eyes and pulled the trigger just once. Result, he shot the entire bunch, killing them all with one shot. And that, my friends, is some shooting.

The Ladies' Aid of the United Church held an auction sale and tea at the village office and realized $32.40 for their effort.

Miss Lila Page spent a week with relatives at Longview. Upon her return she was accompanied by Mrs. Ashbury who is holidaying at Sid Page's.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman McCord, accompanied by the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cowan of Calgary, spent ten days on a circle tour of the Okanagan and Kootenay Valleys.

Miss Nora and Miss Lily Wainwright of Calgary are vacationing at the home of their sister, Mrs. E. W. Tester.

The first new grain hauled to the Milo elevators was a load of barley delivered by Clarence Johnk to the Pioneer Grain Co. on August the first.

Mrs. E. Hepburn, nee Eileen Brinker, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clem Brinker. She acted in the capacity of auctioneer at the Ladies' Aid sale and the local auctioneers had better look to their laurels.

Mrs. A. Grant and daughter Lois of Blairmore are visiting at the home of Mrs. Grant's sister Mrs. Ed. Beegan.

Miss Ruth Wright of Airview, Alta., has taken a position with the Vulcan Municipal Hospital.

In contrast to the bulging bins of the last few years the Milo annexes and elevators are at last showing a little storage space. In July 223 cars were shipped from Milo, Queenstown and Shouldice totalling 375,000 bushels.

Mrs. Ann Elliot, mother of Alfred and George Heather, passed away in Calgary in her 79th year. She came to Canada from England in 1910, two years later than her sons. Interment was in the Union cemetery and funeral arrangements were in charge of Jacques Funeral Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Dawson of Calgary were week-end visitors at William Holton's.

Cpl. Warman who has been stationed at Ottawa for the past four years accompanied by his wife, nee Dorothy Bushell, is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bushell.

Miss Leta Jackson of Calgary, and Lester Jackson of Camp Bowden are visiting their sister Mrs. Lawrence Monner.

At a recent election of the Bow Valley School Division, Mr. Lawrence Monner was elected to represent the districts of Milo, Queenstown, Shouldice and Arrowwood.

Quite a number of the young people who belong to the Norwegian-Lutheran church are attending the Bible school which is being held in Claresholm.

Mr. A. Voys is on a trip to Spokane.

Other boys well known in this district who returned recently from overseas include the McNally boys from High River and Pete Stokes of Armada.

First Picture of New 1946 Model Ford Car

The first post-war hand-made Ford passenger automobile, to be known as the 1946 model, has been completed by the Ford Motor Company.

Although assembly line production of new cars is expected to get under way approximately September, depending on the availability of raw materials, Ford officials pointed out that motorists will have to wait a year or two at least before they can buy new cars, due to limited production and priority restrictions.

The new 1946 post-war Ford will embody more mechanical improvements than many pre-war annual models resulting in greater economy and a better ride. The exterior front end appearance, interior trim, hardware and other features are new in design. New beautiful colors will be available.

Meat Ration Coupon Plan

The brown "M" coupons in existing ration books will be used for meat rationing. Each coupon has a value ranging from one to three pounds of meat depending on the type.

Meat "tokens" are being introduced on the basis of 8 tokens for one coupon. This permits the buyer to split his coupon and buy less meat at one time.

Fancy and canned meats are included in the ration.

The division of meats and cuts for rationing is as follows:

Group A (one pound a coupon): Includes corned beef, pork sliced; back or side bacon, sliced, and corned pork and ham.

Group B (1 1/2 pounds a coupon): Includes round beef, steak; sirloin tip; veal cutlets; mutton front quarter; whole fresh ham; smoked pork centre slices.

Group C (two pounds a coupon): Includes beef hind quarter shank; pork steak; neck; veal loin; side pork, fresh; dry salt lean backs; corned; jellied meats; liver, kidney, sweet end.

Group D (2 pounds a coupon): Includes beef short ribs; fresh veal flank; pork sausage; mutton leg cut; fresh loin pork; smoked pork jowl.

Group E (three pounds a coupon): Includes fresh pork jowl; corned pork; head.

When consumer rationing is introduced the ration will be roughly two pounds a person, carcass weight.

The meats remaining unrationed are beef, calf, pork and lamb brains and heads, and beef, pork and lamb tails. Poultry, game and fish, canned or fresh, will not be rationed.

Meat coupons will be valid until devalued and will not expire as under previous rationing.

Meatless days will continue to be observed in restaurants on Fridays and Tuesdays, but not in such establishments as mining and logging camps or hospitals. Hot dog and hamburger stands will have to observe Tuesdays and Fridays.

The blue tokens, eight of which are given for one coupon, will be a new load for Canadian pocket books. They are stamped "Canada Ration" with a maple leaf and have been made in U.S.A. The tokens are given a customer as change, provided the purchaser does not buy up to the full value of a coupon in one purchase.

World Shortage

In some liberated areas the meat ration is far below the 2000 calories a day and is insufficient for a working population. In U.S. and Canada the average of civilian consumption in 1944 was about 3700 calories a day and in Britain about 3000. In France the meat shortage is the worst in the last five years.

Present British bacon rations are now at the lowest since the war started, even if the present Canadian contract to supply the U.K. with 150,000,000 lbs. is filled.

Lockers

Only 50 per cent of h's coupons would be taken from a person having meat in store in a locker. Quotations held in private lockers usually were small. A locker would be regarded as a household unit and if the meat held in it were for the use of all the family, then 50 per cent of all coupons in the family would have to be surrendered.

Paper Primary Salvage Need

Paper continues to be the primary salvage need of this country. A few years ago it was required to meet war material shortage Number One.

Paper is needed vitally to provide the necessary containers for shipment of vital supplies to our services still in Europe. It is needed for the vast war supplies required for Pacific action against the Japanese. It is required for shipment of life-saving food and clothing to the liberated countries of Europe. It is required for the sending of essential foods to the United Kingdom.

Mr. and Mrs. Cam Stewart left by motor for Vancouver via Spokane and Seattle on a visit to their parents.

We are sorry to report that David Randle is in a Calgary hospital suffering from an infection in his leg. We all join in wishing you a speedy recovery David.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Izyk attended the wedding of Miss Nancy Holoboff and Mr. Kingsmith in Calgary on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Thompson of Calgary, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Howie last weekend.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nelson was the scene of a community party when over 100 friends and neighbors gathered to honor them. The young people chose up sides and had a very lively ball game until darkness prevented them from seeing the ball. Then all gathered on the lawn where the ball piano had been brought on a truck, and a sing-song was enjoyed. A big bonfire in the yard held the interest of most of the young boys who kept it going. Before supper Mr. and Mrs. Nelson were escorted to the truck and Mr. Thurlow on behalf of the community wished them every success and happiness and presented them with a purse and also on behalf of the Farrow Ladies Aid presented Mrs. Nelson with a beautiful silver dish. Both Mr. and Mrs. Nelson thanked the gathering for the gifts and good wishes and expressed the wish that all could come at once. Then all joined in singing for "They are jolly good fellows," followed by three cheers for the guests of honor. Coffee and sandwiches and ice cream cones were then served by the community ladies after which Mr. and Mrs. Nelson treated everyone to chocolate and cigarettes, concluding a very happy evening.

Mr. Joe Leslie is a patient in the High River hospital. His many friends join in wishing him a speedy recovery.

A delightful shower was held in the hall on Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Thompson, nee Mary Howe. A fine program in charge of Mrs. Walker was enjoyed by all. Those taking part were Mrs. J. Murphy with a Quiz program; a solo by Miss Elsie McQueen; a reading by Mrs. Thurlow; a solo by Little Andy Dawes; and a solo by Mrs. Arthur Dawes. Mrs. Jack Green made the presentation to the bride who very graciously thanked the ladies for the lovely gifts. Little Miss Gail Maisey and Master Andy Dawes, as bride and groom brought in the gifts in a graily decorated carriage. Misses Sara Green and Alice Johnston assisted the bride in the unwrapping and display of gifts. A delicious lunch was served at the close of the afternoon.
